WCS postpones Japanese Exchange Program due to COVID-19 concerns

Chinese exchange trip planned for August could also be in jeopardy

By ROB BURGESS
Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

At Monday's Wabash City Schools (WCS) board meeting, Superintendent Jason Callahan announced the long-planned Japanese Exchange Program will be delayed by a year due to concerns surrounding the COVID-19 outbreak.

This April, around 20 Wabash High School (WHS) students and their families were set to participate in by hosting 44 students from a private high school outside of Tokyo, Japan.

During the Japanese students' visit, they were set to learn about Wabash, experience American culture and attend classes at WHS. Then, this summer, during the 2020 Summer Olympics, WHS students were set to have the opportunity to travel to Japan to stay with the students they hosted.

Last month, passengers aboard the Diamond Princess cruise line were quarantined for two weeks outside Yokohama, Japan after dozens of passengers were diagnosed with novel disease.

Callahan said he wanted to emphasize the trip was delayed not canceled.

"I'm real proud of that partnership," he said. "We are teaching global citizenship. Our kids, even through this, are seeing that things that happen across the world have a direct impact on Wabash."

Callahan said a Chinese exchange planned for August might be in danger of being postponed, as well.

"We haven't heard much about that, but it could be at risk," he said.

WHS Principal Kyle Wieland said the only negative of the delay was that it wasn't happening this year.

"None of our students who were traveling there were seniors and so they'll all have the opportunity to do that," he said. "And I think the additional time is going to make this a better program because of the cost of it."

Virus crisis ebbs in China, spreads fear across the West

By LORI HINNANT
and KEN MORITSUGU
Associated Press

PARIS — The coronavirus crisis shifted increasingly westward toward the Mid-east, Europe and the United States on Tuesday, with governments taking emergency steps to ease shortages of face masks and other supplies for front-line doctors and nurses. “We are concerned that countries’ abilities to respond are being compromised by the severe and increasing disruption to the global supply of personal protective equipment, caused by rising demand, hoarding and misuse,” said the World Health Organization’s director-general, Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus. “We can’t stop COVID-19 without protecting our health workers.” Around the world, deaths in Italy surged to 79, making it the deadliest reported outbreak outside China. Twenty-three members of Iran’s Parliament and the head of the country’s emergency services were reported infected. South Korea started drive-thru testing. And in Spain’s Basque region, at least five doctors and nurses were infected and nearly 100 health care workers were being held in isolation. The mushrooming outbreaks contrasted with optimism in China, where thousands of recovered patients were going home and the number of new infections dropped to the lowest level in several weeks. Worldwide, more than 92,000 people have been sickened and over 3,100 have died, the vast majority of them in China. The number of countries hit by the virus reached at least 70, with Ukraine and Morocco reporting their first cases. Virus clusters in the United States led schools and subways to sanitize, quickened the search for a vaccine and spread fears among nursing home residents, who are especially vulnerable. The number of the infections in the U.S. topped 100 and the death toll climbed to nine. All of the deaths were in Washington state, and most of them were residents of a Seattle-area nursing home. The U.S. Federal Reserve announced the biggest interest-rate cut in over a decade to try to counter the expected damage to the economy, and stocks rose briefly on Wall Street in reaction before slumping again. Fed Chairman Jerome Powell said the virus “will surely weigh on economic activity both here and abroad for some time.” Other Group of Seven countries appeared reluctant to follow suit with their own cuts, probably because many of their interest rates are already near or below zero. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration gave health care workers the OK to use an industrial type of respirator mask often used to protect construction workers from dust and debris. Iran’s supreme leader ordered the military to assist health officials in fighting the virus, which authorities said has killed 77 people. Among the dead are a confidant of Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, Iran’s former ambassador to the Vatican and a recently elected member of Parliament. Iran’s judiciary chief, Ebrahim Raisi, said some people are stockpiling medical supplies for profit and urged prosecutors to show no mercy. “Hoarding sanitizing items is playing with people’s lives, and it is not ignorable,” he said.

Indiana Wesleyan University (IWU), Huston worked in the Extension office part-time, first as a summer assistant and then an administrative assistant. “I am excited to take on this new role as an educator as I have learned a lot during my time in the office,” she stated. “During my time at IWU, I became involved in community outreach through my internship at a local elementary school and Family Service Society where I worked on the System of Care Community Connection team. While working within my internships I worked with youth, parents and volunteers. I found that I enjoy working with community members within our shared community and I am excited to continue that journey as I come back home to Wabash County.” Rob Burgess, Wabash Plain Dealer editor, may be reached by email at rburgess@wabashplaindealer.com.

The estimated cost per student is $2,800. To help alleviate costs of the program, Mayor Scott Long has announced he will provide a dollar-for-dollar match for any donations made to the WCS Foundation Fund held at the Community Foundation of Wabash County. “I think by having more time for students to generate the funds, we are going to have more students who are going to be able to attend in a year,” he said. Wieland said the extra time will allow the school to facilitate additional cultural experiences and work on learning the language before embarking. “We met with them and there was a good interest in both of those topics,” he said. “I’m really happy with all the positives that come along with all that additional time.” Those who wish to support the program may donate on the Community Foundation website at www.cfwabash.org, or with a check, with “Japanese Exchange Program” in the memo line. Donations will support the expenses of the program, including travel, and will not support specific students. For more information, email melissa@cfwabash.org. # Ministrokes require immediate medical care

DEAR DOCTOR: Our mom had half of her face go numb for a few minutes, and she also had trouble speaking. She went to the doctor and was told she had a ministroke. What is that? Is it dangerous?
DEAR READER: Your mother had what is known as a transient ischemic attack, or TIA. This occurs due to a temporary decrease or blockage of blood flow within the brain. The words “mini” and “temporary” sound reassuring, and, in fact, people tend to shrug off a TIA because the symptoms often improve quickly. However, a TIA is a strong warning sign of elevated stroke risk, which makes it a medical emergency. Up to 15 percent of patients go on to have a more severe stroke in the three months following a TIA, with half of those occurring within the first 48 hours after the initial event. Statistics show that long-term stroke risk is elevated as well.

Elizabeth Ko & Eve Glazier
Ask the Doctors

blood lipid profile also play a role. If you have the symptoms of a TIA, it’s important to seek medical care immediately. Diagnosis includes a complete medical history, physical exam and one or more of a variety of scans and imaging tests to evaluate the relevant blood vessels. Treatment may include the use of medications to lessen the risk of clotting, to dissolve existing clots, to lower blood cholesterol and to address any blood pressure issues. In some cases, angioplasty to open a clogged artery, or the use of a stent to prop open an artery, may be recommended. When severe blockage is found, surgery to clear the artery may be needed. The treatment approach is determined by the cause, location and severity of the TIA, as well as each patient’s medical status and history. The reassuring news is that, with prompt and proper medical care, up to 80 percent of the strokes that occur after a TIA are preventable. That makes early diagnosis and immediate treatment all the more important. *Eve Glazier, M.D., MBA, is an internist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA Health. ### Betty Jean Dean

Nov. 28, 1927 – Mar. 1, 2020

Betty Jean Dean, 92, of Wabash, Indiana, passed into the loving arms of her Lord and Savior on Mar. 1, 2020 at Parkview Regional Medical Center, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

She was born Nov. 28, 1927 in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, the daughter of Homer and Evelyn Heiser. She was one of ten children. Betty graduated from Tallmadge High School, Tallmadge, Ohio in 1945 where she captained the cheerleading squad. It was there where she met the love of her life, Donald Dean. Together they have celebrated over 71 years of marriage with four children, eleven grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

Grandchildren: Brian (Jen) Hale of Indianapolis, Indiana, Stacey Hale of Columbus, Melissa (Brandon) Crawford of Rogersville, Tennessee, Kyle (Kate) Dean of Elkhart, Indiana, Tyler (Dani) Dean of Peyton, Colorado, Matthew Howard of Madison, Wisconsin, Mitchell Howard of Toledo, Ohio, Grant Howard of Holland, Michigan, Jeremy Dean of Dayton, Ohio, and Hailey Dean of Wabash. Great-grandchildren: Jacob Crawford, Collin Crawford, Grady Dean, Daily Dean, Kendall Dean, and Landon Dean. Three siblings: Helen (James) Colbert and Russell (Linda) Heiser, both of Mogadore, Ohio, and John (Cindy) Heiser of Tallmadge. She was preceded in death by her siblings, Alfred Heiser, Marcella Shenberger, Homer Heiser, Isabelle

Betty enjoyed traveling with Don, tending to her flower garden, playing board games, bridge, rummy, and other card games. The thing she enjoyed most was cooking and hosting family outings with her family. A very nurturing person with a sharp sense of humor, she was most proud of her children, and grandchildren. She also loved animals especially cats. Betty was a 25 year member of Bachelor Creek Church of Christ in Wabash, and a faithful follower.

Funeral services will be 3 p.m., Sunday, Mar. 8, 2020 at Grandstaff-Hentgen Funeral Service, 1241 Manchester Ave, Wabash with Ryan Keim officiating.

Friends may call 1 p.m. – 3 p.m., Sunday at the funeral home. There will be a visitation from 10 a.m. – 12 p.m., Tuesday, Mar. 10, 2020 at Donovan Bagnoli Funeral Home, 339 SW Ave, Tallmadge, Ohio. Graveside services will be at 12 p.m. at the Tallmadge Cemetery, with Betty’s brother Russell Heiser officiating.

Preferred Memorials are Bachelor Creek Church of Christ or the Animal Shelter of Wabash County.

Carolyn Fay Jett

Apr. 27, 1955 – Mar. 1, 2020

Carolyn Fay Jett, 64, of Wabash, Indiana, entered into her Heavenly Home at 9:58 p.m., Sunday, Mar. 1, 2020 at Parkview Regional Medical Center in Fort Wayne, Indiana. She was born Apr. 27, 1955 in Evansville, Indiana to Louis E. Sr. and Mildred Alene (Bundren) Jett.

Carolyn was a 1973 Wabash High School graduate, and attended Ball State University. She was a clerical assistant, and was a volunteer with the March of Dimes. Carolyn was a member of Bachelor Creek Church of Christ. Her kids and grandkids were the joy of her life.

She is survived by two children, Amanda (Joe) Sisco of Lagro, Indiana, Justin (Kayla) Bitzel of Wabash, “adopted son”, Scott Sager of Wabash, four grandchildren, James Sisco and Gracie Sisco, both of Lagro, Kaystin Bitzel and Kaylin Bitzel, both of Wabash, sister, Marilyn (George) Strong of Wabash, and brother, Louis E. Jett Jr. of Fort Wayne, Indiana. She was preceded in death by her parents.

Memorial services will be 1 p.m. Saturday, Mar. 7, 2020 at Bachelor Creek Church of Christ, Wabash, with David Stokes and Phillip Bundren officiating. Friends may call 4 p.m. – 7 p.m. Thursday, at Grandstaff-Hentgen Funeral Service, 1241 Manchester Avenue, Wabash.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Juvenile Diabetes Association or Carolyn’s request is you vote Republican.

The memorial guest book for Carolyn may be signed at www.grandstaff-hentgen.com.

nominee John W. Corso.

Before the Saturday evening performance, Honeywell Foundation President and CEO Tod Minnich, Wabash Mayor Scott Long and Honeywell Foundation Board Chair Howard Halderman spoke about the Eagles Theatre Renovation Project and March’s month-long celebration schedule.

“For the Honeywell Foundation, this renovation project has always been more than the building. We love this building but we love what happens in this building more,” stated Minnich. “The celebration of Eagles doesn’t end in March. We’ll be adding events and activities throughout the year to use this facility. Five floors of vibrant activity will happen here seven days a week.”

The Eagles Theatre month-long celebration schedule features seven live performances, 26 movies, an evening of open-house tours, and the launch of first-run movies on Friday, March 27 with Disney and Niki Caro’s live-action “Mulan.”

“This building is full of memories for many in the community ... (and) those types of memories are going to be made now for future generations thanks to this renovation for all the kids in Wabash,” stated Long.

The renovation was made into a reality starting with the Stellar Communities Program in 2014 when Wabash was one of two Indiana cities named Stellar Communities Designees.

“This is a historic event for downtown Wabash – to redo, renovate, and make a space like we’ve created here is just simply amazing to me,” stated Halderman. “This Eagles project is what I could call a community effort. The Honeywell Foundation owns the property but (the renovation) was a community-wide effort that required many to join hands to make happen.”

Gayle was presented with a restored and framed tin ceiling tile of the original Eagles Theatre ceiling, adorned with a commemoration plaque, mid-performance on Saturday by Minnich and Honeywell Foundation Vice President of Development and Marketing Cathy Gatchel.

“We are so fortunate. When we were thinking of who would be the perfect artist to open up this theatre, (we thought) how wonderful for our community that we have Crystal Gayle,” said Gatchel. “Not only did Crystal make time for this and worked around her schedule to make this work, Crystal also donated her time, which was just a wonderful gift to our community.”

Following the Saturday evening performance, Crystal was greeted by members of the community, including both fans and friends who thanked her for performing at the 114-year-old theatre.

“It is such an honor to be here opening up this theatre,” stated Gayle. “Wabash (holds) a very special place in my heart and I have so many friends (and family) here. I know I went to school with half the audience.”

The March celebration schedule continues with a film showing of “Loud-Krazy-Love” and a Q&A session with Brian “Head” Welch of Korn and his daughter Jennea on Thursday, March 5, free public open house tours with a film showing of “The Wizard of Oz” on Friday, March 6, and a concert with Addison Agen, Fort Wayne native and Season 13 runner-up of NBC’s “The Voice” on Saturday, March 7.

Coronavirus calls for more global co-operation

Fear can be contagious. The world needs a co-ordinated economic response to the fast-spreading strain of the coronavirus, not only to address the disruption to finance, commerce and industry directly but also to reassure the public and restore confidence.

The OECD, the Paris-based club of mostly rich countries, has warned that the virus and associated shutdowns could cut its global growth forecasts in half. Factory closures in China alone would shave 0.5 percentage points off growth, the OECD said. A more widespread outbreak would cut the expansion of the world economy from 2.9 per cent to 1.5 per cent this year. Even the more benign scenario is enough to push the global economy into a recession, defined as growth below 2.5 per cent.

Given China's role as the world's workshop, providing components and raw materials to factories, the shutdown has disrupted the supply chains that underpin modern manufacturing. US port managers have warned that trade volumes could fall by a fifth in the first three months of this year while the cost of leasing big containers ships is far below normal seasonal levels. The oil price has fallen below $50 a barrel.

The damage, however, is by no means limited to manufacturing. Tourism and transport have already been hit: companies have cut back on business travel, conferences have been canceled and airlines have warned that profits will fall as customers either obey government measures to halt the virus or take matters into their own hands and stay away. IAG, owner of British Airways and Iberia, warned investors last week that the disruption would hurt profits.

Other service activity could suffer if the virus is not contained. Concerns about virus risks could lead customers to stay away from restaurants, cinemas and other public spaces; shoppers taking matters into their own hands has the same effect as an enforced shutdown. Bankers and investors are working out contingency plans to shift operations outside of big cities. Uncertainty can be self-sustaining as drops in spending feed on themselves and businesses cancel spending plans.

On Tuesday, when G7 finance ministers and central bankers discuss their response, they need to be prepared to do everything they can.

Policymakers at the US Federal Reserve, the Bank of Japan and the European Central Bank have already said they are ready to respond to the crisis and provide support. While the disruption is the kind of "supply shock" that is difficult to fight with monetary policy, easing can restore some of the missing demand. The Bank of Korea eased lending terms for small businesses last week.

The virus has come at a particularly difficult time. The global economy was already struggling – unlike during the swine flu epidemic. The trade war and the battles of the car industry already hurt manufacturers. The rise of populism has made co-ordinating responses difficult: the world lacks the sort of leadership that Gordon Brown, then prime minister of Britain, showed in 2009 when he assembled the G20 to address the financial crisis.

Until the public can see a way out of this situation, the fear factor will exacerbate the economic impact. Efforts to halt or slow the spread of the virus have so far taken place on the national level. There must also be a visible international response. Over the past decade, as nationalism has taken root, the world has fragmented. The coronavirus is forcing nations to demonstrate that they are still capable of co-operating for the common good.

All Democrats must prepare to support Sanders

Deal with it: Sen. Bernie Sanders of Vermont, who is not even a Democrat, is leading the race for the Democratic presidential nomination. And it looks possible that none of his rivals will be able to catch him. If you want to get rid of President Trump, prepare to get behind Sanders and do everything you can to make him president.

Plenty of opportunities for twists and turns remain, but Sanders is now the clear front-runner, with a plausible straight-line path to the nomination.

He earned it. Sanders has built a nationwide grass-roots organization, raised a ton of money through small-dollar donations, inspired real passion on the campaign trail and motivated his supporters to come out and vote. That is how you win.

Commentators have warned ominously that the party would be committing "political suicide" if it nominates Sanders. I admit to having flirted with that thought myself. But democracy, done right, can be messy. The whole point of having primaries and caucuses is to allow voters to select the nominee they want, rather than let party insiders make the choice.

Those insiders must feel the way their Republican counterparts did in 2016, as then-candidate Donald Trump seized the GOP in a hostile takeover. He won primary after primary against competitors who split the never-Trump vote. By the time Trump had just two opponents left – Sen. Ted Cruz of Texas and Gov. John Kasich of Ohio – it was too late. Many Republicans were convinced that Trump could not possibly win the general election and would likely lead the whole party to a crushing defeat. We know how that worked out.

History doesn't repeat itself verbatim, though. The dynamic looks similar: Sanders reliably turns out his enthusiastic base, while the others split the somewhat larger please-not-Bernie vote. But it is not at all clear that rank-and-file Democrats see the race as neatly divided into "progressive" and "moderate" lanes, the way so many analysts describe it. A recent Morning Consult poll, for example, found that when supporters of former vice president Joe Biden were asked their second choice, more of them named Sanders than any of the moderates who share Biden's supposed lane. The same was true of supporters of lane-straddling Sen. Elizabeth Warren, D-Mass.

As the field thins out, then, some of the dropouts' support will go to Sanders, rather than to a single alternative representative of a "Stop Sanders" movement.

One unpredictable factor is the role that might be played by former New York mayor Michael Bloomberg – or rather by Bloomberg's vast fortune. He has displayed nothing but contempt for Sanders (the feeling is obviously mutual) and he has the money to stay in the race all the way to the convention. But what then?

If Sanders does as well in the Super Tuesday primaries next week as polls suggest, he will likely arrive at the convention in Milwaukee with more pledged delegates than anybody else. Even if it were just a small plurality, with Bloomberg in second place, would a party that claims to champion the working class really deny Sanders in favor of one of the richest men on the planet? I find that hard to imagine.

If the election ends up being Sanders vs. Trump, the outcome could be a blowout – in either direction.

Sanders would have to do without some campaign funds from Wall Street donors and could forget about the votes of many never-Trump Republicans, who would not vote for a "democratic socialist" no matter how fervently they want to deny Trump a second term. It's possible that a red-menace scare campaign by the GOP – and you know that's coming – could allow Republicans to keep the White House and the Senate, and maybe even challenge the Democrats' majority in the House.

On the other hand, Sanders leads something that's rare and unpredictable in American politics: a genuine movement. Look at the huge crowds at his rallies, reminiscent only of Trump's crowds. Look at his unexpected and overwhelming strength among Latino voters in Nevada.

Are there Obama-Trump-Sanders voters in the Midwestern states that unexpectedly gave Trump his electoral victory four years ago? Could Sanders really, as he claims, put Texas and other states with big Latino populations into play?

Since Trump's election, there's a ready-made answer for all such questions: Stranger things have happened. And our political life, these days, is nothing if not strange.

HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, March 4, the 64th day of 2020. There are 302 days left in the year.

Highlight in history:

On March 4, 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was inaugurated for a second term of office; with the end of the Civil War in sight, Lincoln declared: "With malice toward none, with charity for all."

On this date:

In 1789, the Constitution of the United States went into effect as the first Federal Congress met in New York. (The lawmakers then adjourned for lack of a quorum.)

In 1791, Vermont became the 14th state.

In 1793, George Washington was sworn in for a second term as president of the United States during a ceremony in Philadelphia.

In 1964, Teamsters president James Hoffa and three co-defendants were found guilty by a federal court in Chattanooga, Tennessee, of jury tampering.

Indiana's history with flu

A few years after my 1983 move to Fort Wayne, I was sitting in a restaurant on the south side of town when the dishes on all the tables rattled, as if the floor had suddenly shifted beneath us. The next day, I read that a 5-point-something earthquake had hit the seismic zone between Indiana and Illinois in the Wabash River Valley. It was called a "moderate" earthquake, and we were far from the epicenter, but still ...

Leo Morris

Little bit scary. I feel a bit like that today as panic about a worldwide pandemic trickles slowly into Indiana from the Chinese epicenter of the coronavirus outbreak.

A Hoosier couple was on that endless cruise of the ship that virus-fearing country after country turned away.

An Indiana resident is being "monitored" after a trip to China. Two Hmong men say they were discriminated against at two motels in Plymouth because they "looked Chinese." A northwest Indiana couple self-quarantined after traveling to China.

It is tempting to dismiss the coverage as overzealousness by a press that doesn't want the state to miss out on the vicarious hysteria being enjoyed by the rest of the country.

These are the same people, after all, who urge panic over a few vaping deaths when cigarettes kill tens of thousands, who scare us over airline crashes when deadly automobile collisions are far more likely, who make us think "We're all going to die!" because of alar on apples.

Just, you know, look at the flu. While we're stressing out over a relatively few coronavirus deaths outside of mainland China, the flu kills more than half a million people a year, about 60,000 of them in the U.S. alone.

But that is a faulty comparison.

The flu has been here for a long time, so we know a lot about how it operates. Millions get it every year, but the mortality rate is less than 1 percent. The coronavirus is so new that we're still learning what makes it tick, including what its rate of death is. I've seen estimates ranging from 2 percent to 20 percent. And it seems to be communicable before symptoms are apparent.

It's a statistically safe bet that the feared epidemic won't materialize. Most don't actually come about.

But some do.

Just look at, well, you know, the flu.

The 1918 Spanish Influenza epidemic, near the end of World War I, was as deadly as the war itself. I've seen estimates of 20 to 40 million dead, and Smithsonian magazine puts the total even higher, between 50 and 100 million. Affecting mostly otherwise healthy young adults, rather than most strains that kill mostly children and the elderly, it was thought to have spread so quickly because of crowding in military camps.

About 675,000 Americans died, but fewer than 4,000 of them were in Indiana, and the rate of flu deaths in Indianapolis was just 290 per 100,000 population, one of the lowest in the nation. Historians say two reasons were health officials' thoroughness in confronting the disease, and the media's willingness to publicize the efforts.

The virus was called the "Spanish" flu because the countries fighting World War I, including the U.S. and most in Europe, did not want to sow fear or admit a weakness to the enemy, so the disease spread in relative secrecy. Spain, being neutral, did not suppress its flu news, so got the reputation of being hardest hit.

But here in Indiana, the word went out.

The State Board of Health ordered local officials to close all schools, churches and theaters. All meetings except for small committees were forbidden. Stores were forbidden to have sales.

Imagine such an order going out today.

Somewhere between paralyzing panic and self-defeating indifference, there is a common sense approach that says, let's wait and see and consider the evidence as it comes in. So, until we know more, let's allow public health officials to do their thing and even give the media a pass, however grudgingly.

Indiana DOE launches new school information and data portal

STAFF REPORT

The Indiana Department of Education (IDOE) formally launched Indiana’s new modernized data portal, INview, according to a press release. “Replacing Indiana’s current information portal Compass, and designed to fulfill federal accountability requirements for transparency under the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA), INview provides a robust view of districts and schools for both state and federal accountability measures, while sharing the performance and progress of Indiana schools,” according to the release. “Created with parents in mind, INview serves as IDOE’s new public-facing portal for school-level data. INview brings a new mobile-ready experience to school performance data in a user-friendly question and answer format. As such, INview includes new data points not previously available on Compass. These include student-level spending for every Indiana public school, school environment data (including suspensions and expulsions), school-specific teaching level experience and demographics, and state and national awards and recognitions received. Also, INview provides data for a variety of demographics, such as students in foster care, students who are homeless, students from military-connected families, students identified as high ability, and more.” INview also provides a variety of options to compare districts and schools. One such new option, titled “schools like me,” allows schools to be compared to other schools with similar demographics. Additionally, INview introduces a new level of school groupings called Networks.

Networks are groups of schools aligned for a particular purpose outside of the traditional school/district arrangement. Examples include such groupings as all charter schools authorized by a particular charter school authorizer, all schools of a chosen Archdiocese, and all schools associated with a certain education service center. Any networks to which a school belongs are identified on the profile page of each school. “One notable new feature of INview is the ability for schools to customize their page with graphics and text highlighting key programs and features specific to their schools,” according to the release. To view Indiana’s new data and information portal INview, visit inview.doe.in.gov. For more information on Indiana’s ESSA plan, visit www.doe.in.gov/essa.

State seeks to help navigate child care, early education choices

Indiana FSSA launches video to help guide families

Indiana offers “useful and informative resources” to help parents find quality child care and early learning opportunities for their children, according to a press release. “Good examples are Child CareFinder.IN.Gov, which the Indiana Family and Social Services Administration launched in 2016 to help find and compare licensed and registered child cares in their areas, and BrighterFutures Indiana.org, which supports families in enhancing their children’s learning. To help Hoosiers make better-informed decisions about child care and early education options, FSSA has created a short, easy-to-understand, instructional video to direct them to these useful parenting resources,” stated the release. This new video is available by visiting <https://youtu.be/Yvi40zG4K1o> and is a step-by-step guide on how to use Child Care Finder, an application that allows families to search licensed providers, registered ministries and exempt providers by numerous, important parameters, including location, type of provider, hours, licensing status and whether or not the provider participates in Paths to Quality, Indiana’s voluntary quality rating and improvement system. “Also, families can find inspection reports and any validated complaints or enforcement actions for each provider they search. The video also guides families through Brighter Futures Indiana, a web-based early learning resource for families, which also shares useful, timely information with parenting tips, family activities and child development on social media,” stated the release. Families may also call 800-299-1627 for assistance in locating child care. The Office of Early Childhood and Out-of-School Learning oversees early child care, education and out-of-school-time programs. It is one of the six divisions of FSSA. Individuals with complaints against a child care provider may call 877-511-1144.

Local students named to Trine President’s List

STAFF REPORT

Local students from Trine University’s main campus were named to the President’s List for the fall 2019 term, according to a press release. To earn President’s List honors, main campus students must complete a minimum of 15 hours and have a grade point average of 3.750 to 4.000. Area students named to the President’s List include the following: ■ Claire Barnett, of North Manchester, majoring in biomedical engineering. ■ Chase Guenin, of LaFontaine, majoring in mechanical engineering. ■ Ryan Lotz, of Urbana, majoring in design engineering technology. ■ Drake Richter, of Wabash, majoring in biology. ■ Benjamin Roudebush, of LaFontaine, majoring in computer sci and information tech. ■ Remington Trick, of North Manchester, majoring in biomedical engineering. ■ Peyton Wilson, of LaFontaine, majoring in accounting.

Lawmakers back dropping tests in teacher evaluations

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana legislators have voted to end the mandatory use of student standardized test results in teacher evaluations, dropping a requirement long opposed by teachers. The state Senate voted 50-0 Tuesday in favor of the proposal, following a unanimous vote by House members in January. The votes represent an about-face on the mandate dating from a 2011 Republican-driven education overhaul that school districts incorporate those student exam results in their teacher evaluations, which are used in determining merit pay raises. Schools districts would still have the option of incorporating the scores in evaluations. Bill sponsor Rep. Tony Cook, a Republican from Cicero, has said removing the requirement acknowledges the trouble with measuring teacher effectiveness based on a single student exam. The test mandate was often decried during a November rally by thousands of teachers at the Statehouse, but some business and education reform groups opposed dropping it. The opponents maintain most teachers are being rated effective or highly effective under the current system and that the test scores typically make up less than 10 percent of the rating. Indiana Chamber of Commerce Vice President Jason Bearce said the state should include objective test scores along with subjective reviews by school administrators in the evaluations.

“Jettisoning it all together, we think, sends the wrong message and ultimately will be counterproductive to education in the state,” Bearce told a Senate committee last month. The bill now goes to Gov. Eric Holcomb for consideration.

Local student named to University of Evansville’s Fall 2019 Dean’s List

STAFF REPORT

More than 750 students were named to the Fall 2019 Dean’s List at University of Evansville, according to a press release. Among the local students who made the list was Faith Macy, of Lagro, a SO majoring in nursing. To merit the honor of being placed on the Dean’s List each semester, a student must have carried a full academic load of 12 hours or more, excluding pass/fail courses and have earned a grade point average of 3.5 or above.

Indiana mulls moving schools rather than fixing old properties

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Some lawmakers and advocates are concerned about the process of relocating two schools for blind and deaf students, arguing that it’s being rushed because the schools sit on valuable Indianapolis real estate desirable for development. The Indiana School for the Deaf and the Indiana School for the Blind and Visually Impaired are in dire need of updates and maintenance, including major repairs for new roofs, better drainage and upgraded mechanical systems. An assessment found that both schools combined would need about $96 million for maintenance. Recently, the schools requested more than $8.3 million for projects, ranging from HVAC replacements to roof repairs, which led to the consideration of moving them to new buildings that require less upkeep, according to Republican state Sen. Liz Brown from Fort Wayne. “Are we as a state spending money on a building, when it could be going to a student? That concerns me,” Brown told the Indianapolis Business Journal. “I would much rather see us focus the dollars on the student.” The schools serve a total of about 500 students from preschool to high school annually, providing deaf and blind students with an education advocates say they can’t obtain in traditional public schools. Last year, the General Assembly formed a task force to focus on the schools’ future, which concluded that building new, separate schools on a shared campus would enable the schools to serve students better. The group is still working on more detailed evaluations about what new schools might offer and where they could be located. But some officials say moving the schools is being rushed because their land is a valuable real estate asset. “We’ve always known this was very valuable property,” said Democratic state Rep. Greg Porter from Indianapolis, whose district includes the blind school. “I’m quite sure it’s a development play.” Melissa Keyes, executive director of Indiana Disability Rights, who served as an advisory member of the task force, said the value of the two properties and whether they could be redeveloped was not discussed during meetings. But it’s “obvious that’s what’s playing into it,” she said. “Sixty acres (near) Meridian-Kessler? It’s kind of hard to not recognize that that would be a prime piece of property if there wasn’t a school on it,” Keyes said. But Brown, chair of the task force, said the group wasn’t focused on the real estate, but rather on how to best serve the schools’ students while being mindful of how taxes dollars are spent. Republican Gov. Eric Holcomb said through a spokeswoman that he’s open to the task force’s recommendations. The task force has until end of year to make final recommendations to the State Budget Committee.

Ronaldo says his mother is in ‘stable’ condition at hospital

LISBON (AP) — Cristiano Ronaldo’s mother is in “stable” condition and remains hospitalized, the five-time Ballon d’Or winner tweeted Tuesday, following reports in Portugal that she had a stroke and surgery.

“Thank you for all your messages of support for my mum. She is currently stable and recovering in hospital,” Ronaldo tweeted. “Me and my family would like to thank the medical team looking after her, and kindly ask that we are all given some privacy at this time.”

The Portuguese star flew to his home island of Madeira to be with his mother, Dolores Aveiro.

Juventus is due to host AC Milan in the second leg of the Italian Cup semifinals on Wednesday.

“I don’t know if Ronaldo will return in time for the match,” Juventus coach Maurizio Sarri said. “It depends on how his personal problem evolves.”

Red Sox ace Sale has MRI for elbow soreness

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Boston Red Sox left-hander Chris Sale has soreness in his throwing elbow and has undergone an MRI.

Manager Ron Roenicke said Sale felt the soreness Monday, one day after throwing batting practice.

Dr. James Andrews will review the MRI.

Sale threw about 18 pitches in batting practice Sunday, the first time he faced hitters since he gave up five runs over 6 2/3 innings in a win at Cleveland on Aug. 13. He went on the injured list with elbow inflammation, finishing 6-11 with a 4.40 ERA in 25 starts.

Nets’ Irving has surgery for right shoulder

NEW YORK (AP) — Kyrie Irving underwent surgery Tuesday to repair the injured right shoulder that ended his first season with the Brooklyn Nets after just 20 games.

The Nets said the procedure to relieve the impingement was performed by Dr. Riley Williams III at the Hospital for Special Surgery. The team said Irving is expected to make a full

Baker, Shafer take over as coaches for Norse

By JACOB RUDE
sports@wabashplaindealer.com

Northfield’s baseball and softball teams both will see new coaches at the helm this upcoming spring.

On the softball diamond, after the resignation of Mike Holley, Brandon Baker takes over as head coach. Holley’s long-serving tenure in charge dated back into the 2000s with a brief break in the mid-2010s.

While never having served as the Norse softball coach, Baker did spend two seasons as the baseball coach in recent years. In 2014, Baker led the Norse to a 15-11 record and a Three Rivers Conference (TRC) title in his first year in charge before falling to defending state champions Norwell in the sectional final.

One year later, the Norse pieced together a 19-6 season and a second-place finish in the TRC. In the sectional, the Norse exacted revenge with an upset of No. 2 Norwell in the sectional opener.

Last season, the Norse softball team finished 14-9 overall and 6-3 in the TRC, finishing tied for third in the TRC. The Norse graduated just two seniors from that team, though one was an All-Conference selection in Ally Keaffaber. But the team is buoyed by the return of Addi Baker who hit .588 on the season with a slugging percentage of 1.279.

The baseball team will see Tory Shafer take over as the head coach after years of serving as an assistant with the program. Most recently, the Norse were guided by Clint Davis for the last three seasons. Under Davis, the Norse won sectional and regional titles in 2018 before falling in the semi-state to Daleville.

Shafer served as an assistant on each of those teams as well as both of Baker’s teams.

Last year’s Norse side finished 11-14 after being upset in the sectional title game by North Miami in eight innings, 1-0. That Northfield side was led by a quartet of seniors. Clayton Tomlinson is the top returner after an All-Conference season in which he hit .410 with a team-high 32 hits and 26 runs as a sophomore.

The baseball season is set to start on March 30 at Whitko while the softball season is set to start the same day with a road trip to Southwood.

Brogdon scores 26, Pacers forced to rally late to beat Spurs

By RAUL DOMINGUEZ
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Indiana found its bearing in the paint after losing its composure late against San Antonio.

Malcolm Brogdon scored 26 points, T.J. Warren added 23 and the Pacers rallied to beat the Spurs 116-111 on Monday night after blowing a 15-point lead.

“We just had to calm down,” Indiana coach Nate McMillan said. “We had get back to calm and execute out there.”

The Pacers won their fourth straight, moving into a fifth-place tie with the Philadelphia 76ers in the Eastern Conference.

Patty Mills scored 24 points to lead San Antonio and Trey Lyles added 20. The Spurs, who have lost eight of 11, dropped four games behind the Memphis Grizzlies for eighth place in the West.

“It’s all about being competitive and executing and you’ve got to do it for more of the 48 minutes than your opponent,” San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich said. “We didn’t do anything in the second quarter to help ourselves. In the second half, we competed our (butts) off (and) did a really good job, but little things got us, execution-wise.”

San Antonio trailed 84-69 with 4 1/2 minutes left in the third quarter before rallying. The Spurs went ahead 102-98 with 6:44 remaining in the game, fueled by a pair of 3-pointers each from Mills and Lonnie Walker IV and an emphatic slam by Walker.

Walker finished with 10 points.

The Pacers regained control by pounding the paint against the undersized Spurs, who were without injured big men LaMarcus Aldridge and Jakob Poeltl.

Domantas Sabonis had nine of his 14 points in the final quarter.

Indiana was without Victor Oladipo, who suffered swelling in his right knee following the team’s morning shootaround. McMillan said it’s too early to tell how long Oladipo will be out.

“He’s a huge piece to what we do,” Brogdon said of Oladipo. “But this is a locker room full of confident guys. When one person goes out, the beauty of this team is we adapt, and we have guys that can step up and fill in and continue to play good ball.”

It took some adjustments early, though.

The Spurs made their first four shots, including back-to-back 3-pointers by Lyles and Bryn Forbes, in racing to a 10-0 lead.

“They are a couple of players down right now, but you can’t expect to come to San Antonio and get an easy win,” Indiana center Myles Turner said. “Every time I’ve played here since I’ve been in the league it’s been a tough time.”

The Pacers responded with their own hot streak on 3s. Indiana was 9 for 14 on 3-pointers in the second quarter.

Brogdon’s driving, reverse layup gave the Pacers their first lead at 48-46 with 6:21 remaining in the first half. Indiana extended its lead to 61-51 on one of Doug McDermott’s four 3-pointers.

McDermott had 14 points, going 4 of 5 on 3s.

Major conferences still with plenty left to be decided

By JOHN MARSHALL
AP Basketball Writer

College basketball has reached the final week of the regular season in all the major conferences.

A lot is still left to be decided.

While No. 6 Kentucky has wrapped up the SEC title and No. 8 Seton Hall has earned a share of the Big East, the ACC, Big 12, Big Ten and Pac-12 all will come down to the wire.

The Big Ten has a logjam at the top, with six teams within two games of one another.

No. 9 Maryland, which has a half-game lead over No. 23 Illinois at 13-5, has games against Rutgers and No. 25 Michigan this week. The Illini play No. 19 Ohio State on Thursday and No. 18 Iowa on Sunday.

The Buckeyes play No. 16 Michigan State on Sunday and the Spartans, who are a half-game back at 12-6, play No. 20 Penn State on Tuesday. The Nittany Lions get Northwestern on Saturday.

No. 24 Wisconsin, which was ranked this week for the first time all season, plays Northwestern and Indiana as it tries to make up the one-game deficit behind Maryland.

Good luck sorting all that out.

The ACC has four teams within 1 1/2 games of No. 10 Louisville’s lead at 15-4.

The Cardinals have one game this week and it’s a big one: at No. 22 Virginia on Saturday. The Cavaliers, who are 13-5, also play at Miami on Wednesday.

No. 7 Florida State has two games to make up the half-game it is behind Louisville, at Notre Dame on Wednesday and against Boston College on Saturday.

No. 12 Duke, which rolled over North Carolina State on Monday, faces rival North Carolina at Cameron Indoor Stadium on Saturday.

The Pac-12 has five teams within two games of UCLA at 12-5. No. 13 Oregon is the only ranked team in the conference and has games against Stanford and California this week. The Bruins face rival Southern California.

Arizona State, Colorado and USC are still in the mix, not only for the regular-season title, but for the coveted first-round byes that the top four teams get in the Pac-12 Tournament.

Kansas, the unanimous No. 1 team in this week’s AP Top 25, has a half-game lead over No. 4 Baylor at 15-1. The Bears beat Texas Tech on Monday night to improve to 15-2, so it will all come down to this week.

Kansas plays TCU on Wednesday, then Texas Tech on Saturday. Lose one of those games and Baylor has a shot at sharing the Big 12 title with a win over West Virginia on Wednesday.

FLYING FLYERS

Dayton capped its Atlantic 10 regular-season title with an incredible offensive performance. The Flyers had their best shooting performance in 34 years, hitting 72.3 percent in an 82-67 win over Davidson.

All that’s left for Dayton now is to finish the A-10 season undefeated. The Flyers, who have won 18 straight games, play at Rhode Island on Wednesday and host George Washington on Saturday.

Dayton moved up to No. 3 this week, its highest ranking since reaching No. 2 in 1955-56.

Couple’s trust issues multiply when old girlfriend reappears

DEAR ABBY: I dated a guy for 10 months. We constantly fought because of his lack of trust. He had been burned in previous relationships. He said, “Trust is earned, not given,” which isn’t my philosophy.

After a recent argument (about lack of trust), I told him this attitude is a deal-breaker, and he needed time to reflect on his issues. I talked to him several days a week during the process, and we weren’t intimate during that time.

I decided to have dinner with him at his apartment last night to further discuss the situation, only to have an old girlfriend ring his doorbell, upset. It seems that during the last five weeks, he had started seeing her again and slept with her while attempting to make amends with me. When I asked about her, he told me he thought we were done, and he was trying to put a Band-Aid on his pain. What to do?

He has great qualities but is so jealous and suspicious. Will he ever improve, or will I always be trying to prove myself? I believe he cares for me, but his actions with the old girlfriend negate this. I cannot even begin to rationalize his thought process. — Getting Tired Of It

DEAR GETTING TIRED: This guy is suspicious because HE isn’t trustworthy. There’s a saying attributed to historian, civil rights activist and author W.E.B. Du Bois: “A man does not look behind the door unless he has stood there himself.” People are often jealous and controlling because they are insecure. Your boyfriend ran back to his old girlfriend because he was unable to be alone, even for a brief period. Be smart. Wake up and lose him. You can do better.

DEAR ABBY: My father was physically abusive to me when I was a child, and distant and emotionally abusive when I was a teenager. Because of it, I had low self-esteem and was extremely depressed for most of my life. I confronted him when I was an adult, and he tried to explain why he was that way, but never apologized.

He is now 93 and in a nursing home. He probably won’t be alive much longer. I would like to get closure by telling him the extent to which his behavior damaged my life, but I know it would hurt him. Should I look for the closure I have needed all of my life, or keep it to myself to spare his feelings? — Hurting Still In Colorado

DEAR HURTING: If you have things you need to get off your chest to your father, as painful as they may be, then do it. Explain calmly, in an even tone of voice, how important validation is to children as they develop, and how deeply his physical and emotional abuse has affected your life. I agree that he owes you an apology, but do NOT go there expecting one because he may be incapable of it.

DEAR ABBY: Today I was in a small neighborhood restaurant with a friend. I ordered a special burger. When the cook brought it to the table, my friend immediately pulled out her camera and snapped several shots. A stranger who had been sitting at the bar jumped off his stool and came over to our table with his camera. I’m not sure how many photos of my meal were taken before I was able to start eating. My friend was logging onto Facebook to post before I took my first bite. I was dumbfounded. What can be said to people who are this rude? — Get It While It’s Hot

DEAR GET IT: What can be said? Plenty — starting with, “Knock it off!” or “I don’t like that!” Talk about an invasion of privacy as well as personal space. I don’t blame you for feeling invaded.

God wants obedient followers, not machines

From the writings of the Rev. Billy Graham

Q: When people say that God ordains something, doesn't that take away man's free will, something that God gave to man in the Garden of Eden? — F.C.

A: To ordain something is to set it apart as something special. This is what God did for mankind — setting them apart for fellowship with Him. But He also gave mankind free will that was put to the test. One tree in the luscious Garden of Eden symbolized the knowledge of good and evil, and God said, "You shall not eat." Adam and Eve ate and violated what they knew to be God's will (see Rom. 5:12-19; Gen. 3:1-8; 1 Tim. 2:13-14).

God could have created human robots who would respond mechanically to His direction. Obviously, this would be a response over which man had no control. But instead, God created us in His image, and He desires that the creature worship the Creator as a response of love. This can be accomplished when "free will" is exercised. Love and obedience which are [forced] do not satisfy. God wants obedient followers, not machines.

A pastor friend once told of his son who was attending a state university and becoming "very wise." "Dad," he said to his father one day, "I'm not sure that when I get out of school I will be able to follow you in your Christian faith." The father looked at him with compassion and replied, "Son, that is your freedom — your terrible freedom."

Freedom to choose results in God's blessing or the consequences of disobedience to His will. We can exercise our freedom to love God with our obedience or we can rebel and build our lives without Him. Depending on our choice, it can be a glorious freedom or a terrible freedom. Choose to follow Christ.

NOTICE OF REAL PROPERTY
COMMISSIONERS' CERTIFICATE SALE
Wabash County Indiana
Beginning 10:00 AM, April 14, 2020 Local Time

STATE OF INDIANA
WABASH COUNTY
Pursuant to the laws of the Indiana General Assembly and by resolution of the Wabash County Commissioners, notice is hereby given that the following described tracts or items of real property are listed for sale for delinquent taxes and / or special assessments. The minimum sale prices listed below are less than the minimum sale prices when offered in the immediately preceding county tax sale held under Section 5 of IC 6-1.1-24 and include all fees and expenses of the county directly attributable to the Commissioners' Certificate Sale. The Wabash County Commissioners will accept bids for the certificates of sale, for the price referred to in IC 6-1.1-24-6.1(a)(3), by public auction on April 14, 2020 at 10:00 AM Courthouse Time at the Courthouse – Commissioners' Room, 2nd Floor. Pursuant to IC 6-1.1-24-5.1, a business entity that seeks to register to bid in an Indiana Commissioners' Certificate Sale must provide to the county treasurer, a Certificate of Authority from, or proof of registration with the Secretary of State. Pursuant to IC 6-1.1-24-3(e), property descriptions may be omitted for properties appearing on the certified list in consecutive years. A complete property list may be obtained at www.sriservices.com or in an alternative form upon request. A person redeeming each tract or item of real property after the sale of the certificate must pay: (A) the amount of the minimum bid under Section 5 of IC 6-1.1-24 for which the tract or item of real property was last offered for sale; (B) ten percent (10%) of the amount for which the certificate is sold; (C) the attorney's fees and costs of giving notice under IC 6-1.1-25-4.5; (D) the costs of a title search or of examining and updating the abstract of title for the tract or item of real property; (E) all taxes and special assessments on the tract or item of real property paid by the purchaser after the sale of the certificate plus interest at the rate of ten percent (10%) per annum on the amount of taxes and special assessments paid by the purchaser on the redeemed property; and (F), all costs of sale, advertising costs, and other expenses of the county directly attributable to the sale of the certificate. If the certificate is sold for an amount more than the minimum bid under Section 5 of IC 6-1.1-24 for which the tract or item of real property was last offered for sale and the property is not redeemed, the owner of record of the tract or item of real property who is divested of ownership at the time the tax deed is issued may have a right to the tax sale surplus. Indiana law prohibits a person who owes delinquent taxes, special assessments, penalties, interest, or costs directly attributable to a prior tax sale, from purchasing tracts or items of real property at a tax sale. Prior to bidding at a tax sale, each bidder must affirm under the penalties for perjury that he or she does not owe delinquent taxes, special assessments, penalties, interest, costs directly attributable to a prior tax sale, amounts from a final adjudication in favor of a political subdivision in this county, any civil penalties imposed for the violation of a building code or ordinance of this county, or any civil penalties imposed by a health department in this county. Further, each bidder must acknowledge that any successful bid made in violation of the above statement is subject to forfeiture. In the event of forfeiture, the bid amount shall be applied to the delinquent taxes, special assessments, penalties, interest, costs, judgments, or civil penalties of the ineligible bidder, and a certificate will be issued to the county executive. The Commissioners specifically reserve the right to withhold from the sale any parcel which has been listed in error, or which otherwise becomes ineligible for sale either prior to the start or during the duration of the auction. The Auditor's Office does not warrant the accuracy of the key numbers or street addresses published herein and any misstatement in the key number or street address does not invalidate an otherwise valid sale.

Anthem offers a money-back guarantee designed to help you avoid wasting money on ineffective tax services. We will gather as much information from you as necessary and work with tax authorities to give you the best chance of reducing your tax debt. If for any reason that does not work out, and the government notifies us they refuse to reduce your overall tax liability or monthly payments by any amount, we will gladly refund you the fees you paid for our services in trying to reduce that debt. Money Back Guarantee does not apply to bookkeeping and Tax Preparation Services.

Engaged Involved Sticky

3/4 of all U.S. adults have read a newspaper in print or online in the past week. Those 170 million adults do more than read, they are actively engaged with the advertising in it. If you want both reach and engagement, you want newspapers today.

41%

say newspapers are the medium used most to check out ads, more than all electronic media (TV, radio, Internet) combined.

82%

took some action as a result of a print newspaper ad in the past 30 days. 59% clipped a coupon, 52% bought something advertised and 45% visited a store.

39%

followed up a newspaper ad online in some way. 33% went to a website after seeing a print newspaper ad and 21% conducted an online search.

36%

who said they had not read a newspaper in the past week, USED a newspaper during that same week. Usage included: 19% checking sales in local stores, 15% clipping a coupon, 14% checking the weather and 10% checking movie listings.

82%

used a preprinted insert in the past 30 days. Adults keep inserts 4.4 days. 59% used inserts to compare prices, 55% used to compare one circular to another, 52% saved until visiting the store and 43% used to make an unplanned purchase.

80%

of U.S. adults report looking at advertising when reading the paper.
